

[2/23] Give a brief description of the functional language paradigm and provide an example of a functional programming language.

A program accepts inputs and produces outputs.

A program is constructed by connecting smaller, pre-defined functions